California Ranch News

Raises of from one-half of a cent to 2 cents per pound in advance payments for California apricots are announced by the information bureau of the California Prune and Apricot Growers' Association, San Jose. The schedule was announced after a special meeting of the executive committee of the association. The raise over last year's payments is due to the ultraconservative basis on which 1927 values were computed, it is said in the committee's report.

The first movement in the Sonoma county hop market for some time was announced last week when 100,000 pounds of 1928 Sonoma County hops were contracted at 19¼ cents a pound and 20,000 pounds were contracted at 17 cents a pound. A number of early contracts were made for this year's crop. Very few 1927 hops are on hand

Delta shipments of onions are expected to commence about July 10th. At the present time the upper San Joaquin Valley is shipping the bulk of the Bermudas, while the Coachella Valley onion deal has been virtually completed.

With the Spanish almond crop but 70 per cent of normal, a new market has been opened to California almond growers, G. H. Hecke, director of agriculture has announced. Advices from London show that, due to drought, the Spanish crop is below normal, and conditions in the Alicante district, are particularly bad, but one-half the crop maturing, Hecke said.

Millions of caterpillars were marching into the Mount Shasta district a few days ago, feeding on any vegetable life in their path. Where this furry legion originated is not known. The "army" is operating on far flung lines It is estimated the caterpillars occupy 200 square miles. There are but few crops in the section occupied by the caterpillars, hence but little damage will be done. While the "army" now may be classed as infantry, in a few days it will have transferred to aviation as the caterpillars will then reach the pupa stage and will finally become butterflies.

California's acreage of Fall or canning tomatoes will be approximately 15 per cent less than in 1927 but nearly 50 per cent more than in 1926, as shown in a crop forecast issued by E. E. Kaufman, chief of the federal-state crop reporting service. Intentions to plant filed with the bureau indicate that 17,600 acres will be set to the crop, as against an actual total of 20,750 acres in 1927 and 12,090 acres in 1926. Southern California will be the principal tomato producing section of the state with 10,000 acres in San Diego, Orange, Los Angeles and Ventura counties. The interior valleys will produce 1,100 acres, the central coast counties of Salinas, San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara, 2,100 acres, and the region from San Benito to Alameda, 3,800.

Exports of merchandise from California during 1927 were valued at $309,544,746 compared with $287,601,684 during 1926; an increase of $21,943,062. This is according to figures made public by the department of commerce at Washington. Gasoline, valued at $56,885,997, ranked first in order of value among the commodities sent from the state to foreign markets during the year. Exports of gas and fuel oil were valued at $29,983,204, followed in order by illuminating oil, $17,984,919; cotton (unmanufactured), $17,967,778; oranges, $13,579,797; raisins, $12,211,638; barley, 12,208,790; prunes, $10,111,544; sardines, $6,487,839; canned peaches, $6,398,579; crude petroleum, $6,230,067, and boards, planks and scantlings, $5,636,484. California ranked fourth among the states in the matter of exports last year, being topped by New York with $769,766,896; Texas, $647,026,141, and Michigan, $326,879,584.

The large supply of medium grade cattle offered on the market early in June tended to slow up demand at Pacific Coast points, according to the Western Cattle Marketing Association. Packers are somewhat "bearish," but the supply of desirable cattle is limited this year and the producers are in a strong position. Feeder cattle trades were being made in some volume at strong prices, and there are indications that feeder prices will advance when the fall demand begins in earnest.

Golden State
News of Interest to All

California's total estimated daily everage crude oil production increased 3,500 barrels during the week ended June 23, it was officially reported by the American Petroleum Institute. The total estimated daily average crude oil production for the week of the report was 645,500 barrels as compared with 642,000 barrels for the week ended June 16.

By way of affording the taxpayers something cheerful to think about, the California Tax Commission announces that it doesn't intend to increase state government revenues. Just what the commission does intend to urge hasn't been revealed as yet, but fears of a year ago that new income would be necessary apparently have been set at rest, at least for the present. "The commission," says Chairman Irving Martin of Stockton, "is not proceeding on the theory that the state needs a lot more revenue."

Urging upon California the need for voting next November the $6,500,000 state park bond issue provided for by the 1927 legislature, conservationists of national repute spoke at San Francisco recently at the 8th national conference on state parks. "This year's conference was held in California for the direct purpose of helping pass the state park bond issue," said Chairman Mather. "The beauties of a state are wasted unless they are made available for the people of the state and its visitors."

With the California highway budget for the 1929-30 biennium now being drafted by the state division of highways, Bert B. Meek, state director of public works, announced that road improvement will proceed along much the same lines as during the present two-year period. It is estimated that the state's highway income for the forth-coming biennium will total between $50,000,000 and $55,000,000. The director disclosed that it is his desire to have right-of-ways on the two main north-south routes and important laterals of the state brought up to a maximum right-of-way width of 100 feet.

California's 1929 auto license plate will be bigger, heavier, and in colors of deep yellow and dull black. They will have three times the visibility of the present gold and blue plates and will be modeled after the present New York auto plate style. The letters of the alphabet are to be used so that the first plate number reads 1-A-1. The plates then will run to 9-A-9999, which will give the division of motor vehicles a run of 90,000 numbers. The lettering then changes and the first of the next series will be 1-B-1 and so on through the alphabet to 9-Z-9999. The letters I, O and Q will be eliminated, due to similarity to numerals.

Earthquake movements in California earthquake regions will soon be accurately measured. A surveying party engaged in measuring Mt. Whitney has passed the 10,360-foot level, according to the Coast and Geodetic Survey, and will reach the summit next month. Metal tablets set in rock at frequent intervals along the line of levels, giving the elevation, will now furnish a basis for detecting the direction and amount of change in elevation in case of earthquakes in that region. The present leveling is part of a five-year Coast and Geodetic Survey study of California earthquake regions.

First steps toward acquisition of the Calaveras and South Calaveras big tree groves as state park lands were accomplished a few days ago with the announcement that part of the territory will ultimately be donated by the federal government. The Calaveras big tree association, announced Fred Stevenot, state director of natural resources, has urged the state park commisison to consider purchase of approximately 9,000 acres privately owned in the groves. A bill sponsored in Congress by Senator Hiram W. Johnson and Congressman Harry L. Englebright he added, allows federal contribution of 1,100 acres additionally if the groves are adopted as a state park during the next six years.

From Oregon to the Mexican line the 300 and more posts of the American Legion of California will observe with fitting ceremony the nation's 152nd birthday, July 4. The World War veterans of Tuolumne County are planning to conduct a union meeting at Malone Lake, where Lieutenant Governor Buron R. Fitts will be the speaker. At Santa Barbara John R. Quinn, former national commander of the legion, will be the speaker of the day. Department Commander Phil Dodson will fill several engagements in the south, while State Adjutant General James K. Fisk is to speak at Oakland's airport. At Banning the legionnaires will dedicate the local airport made possible by their own efforts.

California export trade increased $21,943,062 in 1927, a Department of Commerce annual bulletin announced last week. Exports were valued at $309,544,746, compared with $287,601,684, during 1926. Gasoline, valued at $58,885,997, ranked first in value among commodities sent to foreign markets during 1927. Gas and fuel oil, cotton, oranges raisins, barley, prunes, sardines, canned peaches, crude petroleum and lumber followed in the order named. California ranked fourth among states in value of exports last year, being topped by New York, Texas and Michigan.

Thomas Fox, 71, Democratic leader for half a century and chairman of the Sacramento County Central Committee of his party for more than thirty years, died at Sacramento last week after an illness of several months. Fox served three terms as Sacramento postmaster during the administrations of President Cleveland and Wilson.

State highway projects under contract or to which funds have been obligated involve a total expenditure of $12,218,000 for the first fiscal year of Governor Young's administration, ending June 30. Bert B. Meek, State director of public works, told the governor's cabinet last week that the total includes $5,187,500 devoted to new highway construction and approximately $7,030,000 for reconstruction work. The new undertakings, provided for with the increased gasoline tax, have all been started since January 1.

Women who offend against California laws may be provided with long tenure leases on homes in Merced County, it appears at present. Negotiations for a site for a new women's prison are under way between the state commission on a site for a prison and the State Land Settlement Board for land between Cressey and Ballico, in Merced County, it has been reported.

California faces the probable loss of approximately $5,000,000 a year in taxes of state and national banks, unless the present state taxation plan is changed. This statement, giving additional support to reports that the California Tax Commission will urge a special session of the legislature this summer, was made the other day by State Controller Ray L. Riley, member of the commission.

B. O. CURRY REPORTS KIWANIS CONVENTION

The local Kiwanis Club met in evening session Tuesday.

G. E. Farley acted as chairman and directed the plays from the bench. D. H. Cramer sang an appropriate patriotic solo.

Be Optimist Curry gave a comprehensive report of the International Convention at Seattle. The convention stressed the importance of Club activities for community interests and as this always has been Ben's strong suit he was more than pleased to know others were at it, too. Next international will be held at Milwaukee

Doc Beall will serve as drum major in the big parade Tuesday. Three speakers will hold the boys spell-bound for a few minutes each telling about their respective voyages. These globe trotters are Roy Archibald, D. H. Cramer, and H. C. Smith, and it will be as good as the trip to hear them. You get all but the cinders in your eye.

CONGRESSMAN ARTHUR M. FREE

He made an urgent plea to all good citizens to support the Constitution that means so much to this country of ours.

The repudiation of any portion of this almost sacred document is an attempt to break down our system of government and is deserving of defeat at the electorate.

PHEASANTS ARE BEING PLANTED

The first pheasants of the 1928 season are planted. Finding the young bird popuation at the State Game Farm at Yountville rather crowded, August Bade, superintendent of the farm, looked over his requests for birds and decided that about 650 could easily be disposed of at Redding and Willows.

Temporary coops had been provided in a few hours, and the birds were loaded on the farm truck and on their way. At Redding the Shasta County Fish and Game Protection Asstociation hired a man to look after the birds until such time as they would be able to shift for themselves.

"The fine co-operation we are getting from the sportsmen's club and the residents of the sections where we are planting pheasants shows that this fine game bird is really appreciated. We are going to put out plenty of birds this year, and we have heard nothing but praise for them and the way they are caring for themselves," Bade said as he climbed on the big truck in readiness to start out on the first planting expedition of the season.

CALIFORNIA EDITORS ENJOY OREGONIAN HOSPITALITY

One of the most enjoyable excursions in the history of the California Press Association was the fortieth annual spent this June at Crater Lake, Oregon. The happy family assembled at the Mann hotel, association headquarters, in San Francisco, Sunday, June 24th, and under the direction of its genial president, Ex. Gov. Friend W. Richardson set out by special Southern Pacific train for the Oregon region.

The Ashland Chamber of Commerce met the scribes at Syskiyou summit with automobiles and carried them to their bustling city showing that beautiful section of Oregon and the wonderful Lithia Park where a delightful drink and walk were enjoyed. With an order of "on to Medford" the car-a van again took up the trail, arriving in that city at noon. Here the Ashland boosters bade farewell and left the Editors to the mercies of the Medford Chamber of Commerce who seeing the famished strangers said "let us eat." And the deed was done. After pleasing welcoming addresses by the two Medford editors responded to by President Richardson, the oration of the day was delivered by Prof. Vining, southern Oregon's silver tongued orator. His hearers sat entranced thru-out his talk which closed with that delightful myth of the Klamath Chief and Crater Lake.

In an auto caravan, for 83 miles thru one of the finest forests America, along the well named raging Rogue River, the Medford Chamber of Commerce carried their guests to the far-famed Crater Lake.

To those who have seen the pictures, let the writer say that the indigo blue colors of that deep in land lake are not exaggerated. The sight that greeted the visitor that Monday afternoon and Tuesday was beyond description. Many of the party hiked to the top of Garford peake 2,000 feet above the water while others were satisfied to vien the beauties from the Lodge. Mt. Shasta 104 miles south of Crater Lake was plainly visible with ridges. Groups visited the "Lady of the Woods" near governor's camp and took other hikes along the rim.

During the week it was a delight to experience the heavy snow storms, sleet and rain in close succession. Some indulged in coasting as a new experience.

Two bridge tournaments were held for the vistiors much to the enjoyment of the non-hikers.

At the business meeting Wednesday evening, President Friend W. Richardson, was elected for the 28th time to lead the S[illegible] editors for another year. All those interested in matters pertaining to the welfare of the county have been invited to attend.

Smith of Campbell, and L. H. Happer of La Habra.

Saturday morning the party motored to Klamath Falls down the new highway along the beautiful Klamath Lake and enjoyed a banquet as guests of the Klamath Falls Chamber of Commerce. That evening the scribes entrained for home with many sincere expressions of appreciation for the gracious hospitality afforded by our friends and neighbors of the North.

President Richardson gave a very comprehensive and entertaining lecture on his trip around the world which proved a real educational treat. His personal views and analysis of sights and customs of places visited added much to the enjoyment of the trip.

EXCURSION SIDELIGHTS

Following a crash in the excursion, dilligent search in the party uncovered not a drop of liquor for first aid for a fellow editor. No hip flasks in the party.

The Southern Pacific (Service Plus) Company, held up the excursion train and rushed an extra ferry boat to insure the unmarred pleasure of its patrons.

Fellow Business Man:

The nomination of Herbert C. Hoover should be an inspiration to every American business man. It is a promise and a pledge of the continuance of the Coolidge policies. It is no discredit to the able originator of those policies to say that it is an advance. In accordance with the best practical historical tradition, it places in the hands of one of the ablest practical engineers living, the carrying out of fundamental principles that have brought unexampled prospertiy to this country.

American business men, have, therefore, not only great cause for satisfaction, but they have just cause for pride in the recognition of the fact that it is from the government department dealing directly with business and commerce that the people have selected the next President of the United States.

No other selection could more directly satisfy the business men that Coolidge policies are assured to the country.

There has been no time in history when the business man has had greater opportunity to make his voice effective than the period from now to the coming election in November. With the choice of Herbert Hoover as the standard bearer of the Republican party, we have a man who recognizes the vital influence business plays in the nation's development as evidenced by his co-operation with every American industry during his incumbency of the office as Secretary of Commerce.

It is therefore necessary for all of us to become active in insuring the election of Mr. Hoover.

Won't you join the Republican Business Men, Inc., in the movement to inaugurate at once a campaign that will show the country has no intention of substituting for a program of prosperity and plenty, one that is inherently and historically experimental.

Penny Postcard Welcome

The announced change in the postal rates for July 1 is long overdue. The 2-cent rate for the private mailing card is back again where it belongs at 1 cent. The postal card business has fallen off until it had become but a shadow of its former self.

This reduction is a wise one for it is opening the channels of domestic intercourse one of the means of happiness guaranteed to us by the Constitution.

The reduction of the postal rate on papers and magazines is another order calculated to open wider the channels of communication. The old rate, 2 cents for each two ounces, now is 1 cent for each two ounces or fraction

It is good news that the Postoffice Department has at last seen its way clear to make these reductions. Other changes have been made in special delivery and registry fees and parcel post, but the most far-reaching of the changes is the post card and the newspaper rate reduction.

Still Death Curve

"Death curves" are slowly passing away. A few years ago there were a large number of sharp turns in the highways that again and again spelled disaster and death. Often the victims were autoists not familiar with the roads, but passing strangers. The automobile associations and the highway commission have done much to remedy this situation. The former have placed signs warning of dangerous curves and the latter has seen to it that these curves have been eliminated wherever possible. The program of widening the roadways has straightened out many of these turns. Yet there are a few remaining.

The fewer there are the more dangerous they become because the drivers become less and less on the lookout for the unusual. A sudden change in the program of the road may cause the moment's hesitation that means going into the ditch or the sudden putting on of the brakes, which means skidding and turning turtle.

The recent accident at the Austin Corners' curve, when guests of the pageant were returning home, is an example of what it means to have a bad curve on an otherwise ideal highway. This community feels a responsibility in the matter and public sentiment is for changing this situation. The County Supervisor of this district, in which this part of the highway is located, had made numerous attempts to change this condition. Six serious accidents on this one curve, in one year, with numerous minor mishaps, is too many.

It is to be hoped that this last accident will spur those responsible on in their efforts to change this stretch of road making it safe for th[illegible] increasing hig[illegible] traffic.

Representatives of all machinery and implements associations in California were present at Sacramento June 27 when Governor Young officially laid the cornerstone to the new machinery building at the state fair grounds. The huge structure will cover four acres and is expected to be completed in time for the fair this year, which opens September 1.

Exports of dried fruit from the San Francisco customs district for five months ending May 31, this year, nearly doubled in value and amount those for the same period last year, according tb the Department of Commerce. In 1927, 53,189,484 pounds worth $4,006,293, were exported. This year 107,793,056 pounds, valued at $6,-935,220 were exported. Raisins and prunes accounte d for over 96 million pounds of the 1928 total.

A bulletin entitled "Irrigation of Orchards by Contour Furrows" has just been issued by the University of California Agricultural Extension service, and is now ready for distribution. The circular is written by M. R. Huberty, assistant irrigation engineer in the California Experiment station, and J. B. Brown, extension specialist in irrigation. Explaining that during the past few years there has been a considerable increase in the development of hillside orchard planting, the circular describes the types of contour planting in use and discusses the advantages and disadvantages of each.

Competent, worldwide marketing of California products first; water worries and ways and means to care for increased population, second. This is the view taken by Captain John D. Hubbard, California water expert, toward agricultural development in the state. A state trademark, stamping every product identically as a quality offering from California, says Captain Hubbard, is the answer. "Opposition to the state trademark, grain standard and advertising program is going to mean that, if defeated, we farmers must simply pull away from regular packers, form our own organizations and sell our own products."

About 78,700 acres are planted to Lima beans this season in California, as compared with about 100,000 the last two seasons, a check-up conducted by the California Lima Bean Growers' Association shows. Acreage planted to Baby Limas this season will total about 11,000 in the San Fernando Valley, and perhaps 17,000 acres in other sections of the State, principally about Lompoc and in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys, indicating a total acreage and production not greatly different from last year's. The June 1 total in California warehouse storage of regular Limas was only about 88,000 bags. Since 177,000 bags were moved from California between June 1 and September 1 last year, it is expected by association officials that present stocks will all be cleaned up prior to the new crop harvest.

To study production problems and work out price schedules that will save 6000 growers and 50 big canning concerns from business losses, leaders in the peach growing and canning industries met in San Francisco last week. The meeting was under auspices of the operations committee of the Canners' League of California and was in answer to the demand made by the California Canning Peach Growers' Association for a flat price of $25 a ton for No. 1 paches, with $15 a ton for No. 2 grade. These prices are held by the Canners' League to be virtually impossible because of the tremendously increased production of the California cling peach crop this year. The present year's crop will be 395,000 tons, compared with 322,000 tons for last year, according to surveys by the federal and state governments, as well as by the canners and growers.

Refrigeration charges on melons and lettuce from the Imperial Valley in California and the Salt River Valley region of Arizona, were ordered reduced last week by the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington, effective August 15, to a basis of refrigerating charges of like shipments from the San Joaquin Valley. At present refrigeration charges on Imperial and Salt River Valley products moving eastward are on an average of $30 higher than on melons and lettuce moving from the San Joaquin Valley.

As much area in the State of Cali-fornia is devoted to forest and wood-land as to farms. This is pointed o- in a bulletin just issued by the di-sion of forestry of the Universit. California, College of Agricultu Nineteen million acres in Californ. are now supporting stands of me chantable timber, totaling 280,000,000 000 board feet of timber, of which ap proximately 75,000,000,000 fe the redwood region and the re pine sections. INDEPENDENCE

IN 1876, one hundred years after the signing of the Declaration of Independence, the first telephone circuit was installed on the Pacific Coast. This marked the beginning of a new freedom—freedom from the bonds of distance.

For today, distance is not a barrier to the transmission of thought by speech. The last half century has seen the development of the telephone from small beginnings to a vast network of voice highways extending throughout the length and breadth of the nation.

From your own telephone you are within speaking distance of over 70,000 cities and towns throughout the United States and many points in Mexico, Canada and Europe.

To the boundaries of the nation and beyond—by telephone

Newspaper Men of Oregon and California Enjoy Beauties of Crater Lake

Above—View of Crater Lake, in heart of Crater Lake National Park. This lake of deepest indigo blue is one of the wonders of the Pacific Coast. Below, left—R. W. Sawyer, publisher of the [illegible] Bulletin and president of the Oregon Editorial Association, who presided at the Oregon meeting; R. W. Price, manager of Crater Lake lodge, who was host to the newspapermen, and Friend W. Richardson, former governor of California, and president of the California Editorial Association, who led the delegation from the golden State.

CRATER LAKE LODGE, Oregon. —(Special)—In southern Oregon, 60 miles north of California, stands the broken remnant of a once mighty mountain. In its ancient crater bowl lies one of the world's scenic wonders—a lake whose romantic setting and bewitching coloring are unduplicated anywhere.

This broken mountain itself is still lofty, its upper crags soaring 7,000 to 8,000 feet above the sea. The lake is over 1,000 feet below their summits, and is one of the deepest fresh water lakes on earth. The mountain crags, the lake, and the surrounding territory of mountains, pinnacles and forests are collectively known as Crater Lake National Park.

The story of Crater Lake and how it came into being was one of the most fascinating features of two state editorial association meetings here during the week of June 25 to July 2. During the early part of the week the California State Editorial Associaton, led by its president, Friend W. Richardson, was welcomed at this great resort, and immediately following them, on Thursday, the Oregon State Editorial association convened for its annual meeting. All members of both organizations were guests of R. W. Price, manager of the Crater Lake Lodge.

Visiting newspapermen from Oregon and California learned that Crater Lake's dwelling place, Mount Mazama, is about 100 miles north of Mount Shasta, California's great sleeping fire mountain, and is a true member of that chain of extinct volcanoes that includes Rainier, Adams and St. Helens in Washington, and Hood, Jefferson and the Three Sisters in Oregon—all snow-capped peaks today of rare scenic loveliness—and Lassen, the still smouldering volcano of California. Mount Mazama's fires, however, are utterly stilled. Its day as a fire-breathing mountain has been over for untold centuries. Its loftiest crag is now but 8,156 feet above sea level. Yet there was a time when this mountain was probably equal to Rainier and Shasta, perhaps overtopping 15,000 feet.

Created by the volcanic forces that cast up its neighbors, Mount Mazama, like them, grew cold. There came a day when great glaciers gathered. Such glaciers may still be seen upon Rainier, Adams, Hood, Shasta and other volcanic cones of the Pacific Northwest.

Yet Mount Mazama is only 7,000 to 8,000 feet high today. What became of the rest of it? Evidently there was a vast cataclysm of nature that carried the upper half of Mount Mazama away, leaving a yawning depression. But surrounding plains of Oregon do not show debris of an explosion. Yet seventeen cubic miles of rock and lava have vanished from the earth. The conclusion of geologic science is that the entire upper half of Mount Mazama fell in upon itself. But this is only half the story.

The resulting crater, or "caldera," 6 miles long and 5 miles wide, has been healed and cooled by the falling rains and snows of ages. This precipitation, rain drop by drop, foot by foot, has covered over the great pit to a depth of nearly 2,000 feet. The site of the vanished summit is thus covered by a vast glittering lake of deepest indigo.

And what a lake! In 1853 a party of prospectors were ranging over the Cascade Range in search of a lost mine. The mine was never found. But the mule of one rider stopped suddenly, his forefeet planted at the brink of a mighty crater. It was then that Crater Lake, bluest of the blue lakes of nature, was first beheld by white men's eyes.

For years after the great discovery, Crater Lake remained accessible only to travelers on horseback. But every party that reached the spot brought back stories of the witchery and mystery of this fresh water lake without visible outlet.

And so the varied wonders of Crater Lake came to be known; its blue waters and its painted cliffs, and the prospects that could be obtained from those cliffs, Llao Rock, the Watchman, the Cloud Cap, Glacier peak, Garfield Peak, Vidae Peak and others. It was recognized that here was one of the most interesting scenic spots in the West. So it was made a National Park, and set aside as a place of public recreation for all time.

Newspaper men of both states, some of whom visited the lake for the first time, were enthusiastic in their praise for the area and the lodge, and many are planning to return for longer stays later.

Copenhagen, with a population estimated at 775,400, has a total of approximately 126,000 telephones. Denmark is the seventh European country to be connected with America by telephone. The service in Europe includes all points in Great Britain and Germany, Paris and important cities in Belgium, Holland and Sweden.

state $20,000 will be installed in the south capitol extension building, at Sacramento, the state librarian announced last week. One painting is to be placed in Memorial vestibule, dedicated to soldiers of all wars, and the other will be placed in the library. The first is to be done by Frank Van Sloun, San Francisco, while the second will be the work of Maynard Dixon, Western artist.

The new German dirigible, LZ-127, may make a trip to east Asia by way of California. Dr. Hugo Eckener, Zeppelin builder, in addressing visiting members of the German Foreign Institute, at Friedrichshafen, Germany, said that if his scheduled flight to America in August fulfilled all expectations, he was planning at the beginning of October to continue westward with stops in California and eastern Asia.

With Senator Hiram W. Johnson virtually unopposed, the only prospective August primary contest among aspirants to the United States Senate appears to be a fight between prohibitionists. Charles H. Randall, Los Angeles prohibitionist, has filed for Republican honors against Senator Johnson, but later he found himself facing an opponent for the nomination of his own party. The Secretary of State's office announced receipt of word that Wiley J. Phillips of Los Angeles will also seek the prohibitionist nomination. Other qualified Senatorial candidates are Lena Morrow Lewis, San Francisco Socialist, and Minor Moore, Los Angeles Democrat.

California will receive during the fiscal year 1929 approximately $3,600,000 out of the $82,000,090 which Congress authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to obligate for improving roads on the Federal aid system and within the national forests. The authorization is composed of $75,000,000 federal aid and $7,500,000 for national forest roads and trails. Similar amounts were also approved to be later authorized for fiscal years 1930 and 1931.

With the State Veterans' Welfare Board now buying homes and farms for California's ex-service men at a cost of approximately a million dollars a month, over 200 veterans will receive home loans this month, George M. Stout, secretary of the board, announced recently. During the next six months the six and a half millions remaining of the $30,000,000 veterans' home and farm aid bonds voted by the people will be spent in filling the thousands of requests on file with the board, according to Stout.

A yield of thirty sacks of barley per acre was harvested near Calipatria this season by Brownell Brothers, who had 650 acres in this crop. For several years they have been growing high average yields of from twenty-five to thirty-five sacks per acre, they report. Regular irrigation is given the barley fields during the fall and winter months. After the green barley is large enough, it is pastured off by a large flock of sheep, which are kept as a "sideline." Pasturing is continued until early in spring when the barley is allowed to mature for grain.
